

SS Art Center To Hold Winter Brunch

The annual Winter Brunch will be held at the South Shore Art Center on Sunday, Jan. 14, from 11 to 2.

The Brunch will be hosted by students from Burbank's Experimental Workshop and will be the opening of the Student Exhibit as well as a time to enroll in the Winter Term of Classes.

The highlight of the noon-time affair will be a demonstration of Sumi-e Painting by Douglas Orr at 1 p.m. Orr will be teaching a class in Chinese Brush at the Center; his demonstration will be complemented by a showing of the film Buddhism, Man and Nature that will be shown for the first time at 11. Another film, Three East Coast Artists will alternate and is on the work of Hoffman, de Kooning and Tworkov.

The Center is at 103 Ripley Road and offers classes in painting, drawing, silk screen, photography and children's classes in art and drama. For further information, call 383-9548 between 12-4.

Clothing Sale At Hingham Mormon Church

It's good news for those who eagerly await the unique Clothing Sales frequently held at the Hingham Mormon Church. An extra supply of clothing has arrived, so the next sale will run for two days: Friday, Jan. 12, from 6-9, and Saturday, Jan. 13 from 10-2.

In addition to the usual Junior Miss sizes of dresses, sweaters, leather jackets, jeans, shirts, etc. there will be some men's clothing in teen male sizes. All merchandise is brand new from a well known clothing chain; some items are slightly damaged but repairable.

The Mormon Church is located at 379 Gardner St. Hingham, just off Rte. 3 (Exit 30) near Accord Pond and Rtes. 53 and 228. Great values at 'pennies' will make this sale "well worth your while", promises Polly Doggett of Cohasset who will be assisting at the days of the sale.

Globe's Healy To Speak At Library Friends Meeting

The Friends of Cohasset Library will hold an adult program on Sunday, Jan. 28.

Robert Healy, Executive Editor of the Boston Globe will speak at 4 p.m. Jan. 28 at the Unitarian Parish House. His topic will be 'Decision-Making in the Press'. A top political analyst, Healy has traveled with and written about state, national and international leaders. He is uniquely qualified to discuss how a major newspaper works from the viewpoint of both contributor and editor.

The library hopes you will be present to hear what Healy has to say and to discuss with him this extremely important institution in our democratic society.

Recreation Registrations

Registrations for guitar lessons will be accepted by calling the Recreation Department office at 383-6791. Lessons will be offered for beginners and intermediates from Grade 4 through adults.

Classes will be arranged by age and ability. The cost for this program is $8 for six, one-hour lessons which will be taught by recording artist Mark Minicolla.

Classes will be held at various times on Monday nights at the Town Hall Auditorium. Each participant must have his own guitar.

YOGA CLASSES

The Recreation Department will also accept, via phone, registrations for Yoga classes to be held Wednesday nights at the Town Hall Auditorium.

Beginner classes only will be conducted this session at a fee of $18 for eight, one-hour classes.

The program is open to individuals aged 13 and over. Non-residents will be accepted in this and most programs on a space available basis.

Zoning Changes

Zoning Officer James Litchfield has submitted a letter to the Planning Board recommending revisions of the zoning bylaws.

ment is a big problem" and that it is possible for chemicals in the water to get cooked into the inside of heater coils. Clark, as a plumber and ex-water commissioner, explained that any one or a combination of reasons could cause townspeople to lose their hot water.

"People don't understand the fundamentals of plumbing," Clark said. The temperature in a boiler has to be 180 degrees and the temperate and metering valves have to be working correctly, he said of some of the factors involved in the proper functioning of a hot water heating system.

Other reasons given for recent troubles were the cleaning and draining of the town's water standpipe and the fact that the Scituate line connecting the two systems had to be opened to take excess flow.

The necessity to flush the water mains in the antiquated system and the reversal of flows from the installation of the new water treatment plant last spring were also given as reasons for discoloration and presence of sediments in the water.

Murray said at last week's meeting that she had been told eight years ago by Edwin Pratt, Superintendent of the Water Department, that the pipes in the system were to be replaced over a period of years.

Pratt responded this week to the brouhaha, "I can show you that the majority of people have nothing wrong with their water." He said he had 2000 accounts who were perfectly happy with their water and the rest were "a loud majority." Of the problems facing the residents on North Main Street he had no comment.

Pratt explained that the treatment plant monopolized the Department's time and money for the past 10 years and explains why new pipelines have not been installed in the system. The system will need some flushing when the Scituate valve is shut off after the standpipe cleaning project is completed. He predicted that by next Tuesday morning water will start filling the tank again and that normal pressure will return.

Collins On CCC Board

The Cohasset Community Center Board of Directors has approved the nomination of Peter Collins to its board.

In other business, Jim Drysdale, chairman of the bowling committee, reported that contracts have been given out for work for the refurbishing of the bowling alley. Work to be done will include a new ceiling, overhauling the pin-setters and refinishing the alleys.

Judy Volungis, program director announced that the Winter Program Schedule is ready to go to the press and will be released shortly.
